SOME CALAVERAS SCHOOLS By CHARLES SCHWOERER

At the hands of inevitable progress, most of the oneroom schoolhouses in Calaveras County have disappeared. I think back fondly to the days when each community had such a school.* Over the years, as transportation improved and the number of school children increased these small schools could no longer meet the demands of modern education. Educators today are quick to point out how inefficient these little old schools were. Yet, somehow, often with only partly trained teachers, they fulfilled their important part in the educational system of the day most effectively. For several generations many Calaverans received all the formal learning they ever had in the local one-room school.

A number of the county's schools go back more than 100 years. In fact, as early as 1851, the state legislature set up the framework of the public school system in California. It provided for the annual election of a school committee of three members in each district to supervise school affairs, examine and appoint teachers, disburse the funds, build schoolhouses, and report each year to the State Superintendent.

In May of the following year, Governor Bigler signed a bill making each County Assessor its Superintendent of Schools, ex-officio, and defined his duties. The bill also provided for the election of three County School Board members for a one-year term, assigned the Constables as census marshals, and set forth the duties of the district school trustees. This law further authorized the counties to levy a school tax not to exceed 5c on each $100 of assessed valuation, considerably different from today's levy.

The first reference to a school fund in Calaveras is to be found in the proceedings of the Court of Sessions on October 14th, 1853, which ordered that out of the fifty cents levied on each $100 for county purposes, 5c should be set aside by the Treasurer and reserved for the benefit of the "common" schools in the county. However, in December of the same year this order was replaced by one reducing it to two and one-half cents.

Prior to 1855, all recorded information referring to the schools is found in the proceedings of the Court of Ses-

* Mr. Schwoerer started his long career in education as teacher in a one-room school. Later a principal, he then served many years as County Superintendent of Schools.

WILLOW CREEK SCHOOL

Wade Johnston was instrumental in forming the Willow Creek district, and served as a trustee for many years. The photograph shows how the picturesque building appeared before it was converted into a residence. Willow Creek School closed in 1949.

ALTAVILLE SCHOOL BUILDINGS

As enrollment increased, the original brick building became inadequate, and a second, wooden building was added. The State Forestry now occupies this site, which is commemorated by a historical marker.

sions. In that year the county Board of Supervisors came into being and in their minutes of April 10, 1855, they make reference to the first officer designated as a school official when they allowed F. B. Gall $500 as County Superintendent of common schools.

The first elected Calaveras County Superintendent was Robert Thompson who was chosen at the election held on September 2, 1857.

The first school district established by the Board of Supervisors was at Vallecito. The minutes of Nov. 15, 1855, read, "In the matter of the application of the citizens of Vallecito Township No. 9 for a new school district it is ordered by the board of supervisors that a new school district be created for Vallecito and vicinity."

Some Calaveras Schools

In the Murphys district, private schools were being held in the early fifties, and it is probable that Murphys, Angels, Campo Seco, Cave City, Mokelumne Hill, and San Andreas had already established school districts when school legislation became operative in the county in 1854. Certainly they were established before the Board of Supervisors was instituted.

Altogether there were sixty-six districts set up in the county, but the greatest number in operation at any one time was fifty-seven. In 1923, there were forty-seven elementary districts still in existence, of which forty were active. But by the end of 1930, fifteen of these had been "lapsed" into adjoining districts. In 1930, West Point and Lincoln joined to form West Point Union district; Cave City and Banner formed El Dorado Union in 1946; Angels, Carson Hill, and Robinson Ferry merged into the Mother Lode Union in 1948, and the Mark Twain Union was created when the Mother Lode Union and Altaville voted on July 21, 1950, to unite. On December 29, 1953, Jenny Lind and Evergreen Union was voted. And the following year, the Calaveras Unified School District came into being, including all the elementary districts except Mark Twain Union and Vallecito.

Thus, 112 years after its formation, Vallecito is the sole surviving independent school district in the county.

CAMANCHE SCHOOL

The Camanche school was discontinued in 1955 and its pupils bussed to Valley Springs. However, the building remained until destroyed to make way for Camanche Lake.

Necrology

We very regretfully record the passing on of five of our beloved members:

Mr. Claude Smith, West Point (Charter Member) Mrs. Dollie Peek, Murphys (Charter Member) Mrs. Grace Lytle, Mokelumne Hill Mrs. James E. Gericke, Fallon, Marin County Miss Mary Bess Norton, Murphys

MOUNTAIN RANCH SCHOOL

Located in the upper part of town, this building was in use until 1946. One of the earliest formed in the county, this school district took its name from booming Cave City, nearby.

May Meeting

Mr. Richard Stockton, teacher at Calaveras High school, presented seven of his students from a special study class, each giving a paper on the subject, "Which Calaveras Community has the Most Historic Value?" The papers were excellent and the program was well received by the group present at the meeting. We hope Mr. Stockton will continue with this project next year.

June Meeting

A pleasant innovation was started this month by having a half-hour social before the meeting, held downstairs in the Grange Hall. Mr. Harry Bagley, feature writer for the Stockton Record, gave a talk on his discovery of the Demarest Papers and their donation to the Stuart Library at U. O. P. New officers were elected for the coming year.

VALLEY SPRINGS SCHOOL

A view taken about 1935. The smaller building (on the right) was originally the Cloverdale school, on the Valley Springs-Linden Road, and was moved to Valley Springs at the time of the Pardee Dam construction, after there was no longer need for it in the Cloverdale district.

A SUPERCARGO'S SEA CHEST

A most interesting relic of the gold rush came to light recently in Angels Camp. While casually inspecting an old wooden chest that he found in his uncle's garage, carpenter Raullin Lagomarsino was surprised to see an inscription pencilled inside the lid, as follows:

Ship Singapore, 623 Tons Register

Capt. Chas. W. Hamilton Cape of Good Hope Nov. 16th, 1851 Calcutta Jan. 14th, 1852 St. Helena June 11th, 1852 Cape of Good Hope May 23rd, 1852 Boston July 2nd, 1852 Abraham Howard Charles W. Brooks

Clipper Ship John Gilpin, 1089 Tons Register

Justus Doane New York Oct. 29th, 1852 Cape Horn Dec. 20th, 1852 San Francisco Feb. 1st, 1853 Honolulu Mar. 10th, 1853 Singapore Apr. 20th, 1853 Calcutta May 20th, 1853 Lands Heads July 13th, 1853 Penang Aug. 9th, 1853 Acheen Head, Sumatra Aug. 14th, 1853 Cape Good Hope Sept. 14th, 1853 Boston, Mass., U.S.A. Nov. 10th, 1853

Clipper Ship Northern Light (tonnage illeg.)

Capt. Hatch Sailed from Boston (date gone) 1854 Arrived at San Francisco (date gone)

This old sea chest, still in excellent condition, must have belonged to two ship's clerks who sailed on clipper ships on the San Francisco run during the gold rush. The chest was probably made for Abraham Howard, for remnants of his name are painted on the outside. Later it must have been acquired by his shipmate, Charles Brooks, who presumably wrote the record of their landfalls and departures inside the lid.

It is quite apparent that when the "Northern Light" arrived in San Francisco in 1854-55, young Brooks packed his belongings in his chest, was paid off, and headed for the gold diggings. Or just as likely, along with some of his fellow seamen, he quietly lowered his chest over the side, under the cover of darkness, and left the "Northern Light" to get along as best she could without him.

The "Singapore," a small ship, was just a merchantman. The "John Gilpin," on the other hand, was a crack clipper and one that regularly gave a good account of herself. On her maiden voyage (the one chronicled in the chest) she came close to making a record, taking only 93 days on the westbound trip from New York to "Frisco." Only one other clipper that year, the "Flying Fish," made better speed, beating the "Gilpin's" time by one day. Captain Arthur Clark, in his authoritative work, "The Clipper Ship Era," speaks of this passage as follows:

"The match between the 'Flying Fish' and the 'John Gilpin' was exceedingly close . . . The 'John Gilpin' sailed out past Sandy Hook, October 29, 1852, followed by the 'Flying Fish' on November 1st, and before the green Highlands of Neversink had disappeared below the horizon both ships were under a cloud of canvas. The 'Flying Fish' fanned along through the doldrums and crossed the equator 21 days from Sandy Hook, leading the 'John Gilpin' by one day. From the line to 50 degrees South, the 'John Gilpin' made the run in 23 days, passing the 'Flying Fish' and getting a clear lead of two days, the 'Flying Fish' did some fine sailing here; dashing through the Straights of Le Maire, she came up alongside the 'John Gilpin' just off the Horn, and (Captain) Nickels, ever famous for his jovial good-cheer, invited (Captain) Doane to come aboard and dine with him, 'which invitation,' the 'John Gilpin's' log-book ruefully records, 'I was reluctantly obliged to decline.' This is perhaps the only instance of an invitation to dine out being received off Cape Horn . . .

'The 'Flying Fish' . . . made the run from 50 degrees South in the Atlantic to 50 degrees South in the Pacific in 7 days, leading her rival by two days. From this point to the equator, the 'Flying Fish' was 19 and the 'John Gilpin' 20 days. From here the 'John Gilpin' showed remarkable speed, making the run to San Francisco in 15 days, a total of 93 days, closely followed by the 'Flying Fish', 92 days from Sandy Hook."

The old sea chest in Angels Camp is, no doubt, one of the few articles that was carried around the Horn on that famous voyage, so many years ago, that is still extant.

The same year (1853), the "Northern Light," another beautiful clipper, under Captain Freeman Hatch, returned from San Francisco to her home port of Boston in 76 days, a record passage never beaten. Her best day's run of 354 miles eloquently testifies to the speed of these remarkable sailing ships, and to the seamanship of their commanders and crews. The owner of the chest joined the "Northern Light" in Boston, on her next California voyage, and then went "to see the elephant."

The "Northern Light" and the "John Gilpin" were both Boston built and owned. The "Gilpin" collided with an iceberg in '58 and foundered — all hands being saved by another ship. The "Northern Light" had a much longer history and was owned and commanded in her later years by Captain Joshua Slocum, famous for his single-handed trip around the world in the sloop "Spray."

Editor of Las Calaveras ......W. P. Fuller, Jr., San Andreas

Las Calaveras is published quarterly by the Calaveras County Historical Society. Individual memberships ($4.00 a year), Family ($6.00) and Junior memberships ($1.00) include subscription to Las Calaveras. Non-members may obtain copies of Las Calaveras from the Secretary. The original historical material in this bulletin is not copyrighted and anyone is invited to use it. Mention of the source will be appreciated.

The Calaveras County Historical Society, a non-profit corporation, meets on the fourth Thursday of each month at the Grange Hall in San Andreas—except for dinner meetings which are held each quarter at different places in the county.

EDITORIAL

Once again it is the time of year when we see new names on our masthead. We thank George Poore for the fine two-years' leadership that he has given the Society. He is already embarked on his duties as curator of the County Museum, and will be very busy there. While George presided over Society affairs, our membership grew considerably and we had many interesting meetings.

We look forward to another good year, under our new president, John P. Lemue. We hope that he will find many willing hands to assist him in making this coming year a most successful one.

A major milestone in the history of the Society was passed when Sadie Hunt retired as secretary. After serving on the Grange committee that launched the Society 15 years ago, she became our first secretary and has held that important post ever since, until relieved by Dorothy Sloan this month. It is in great part due to Sadie's energetic, meticulous, and dedicated management of the Society's records, minutes, and the endless mailings of meeting notices and dues bills, that this has been a successful, continuing, and growing organization. Although this is a challenging job, we are confident that Dorothy will carry on in good fashion the traditions established by Sadie's stewardship.

We welcome Mrs. Otta Leonard and Mrs. Hattie Hertzig, both long-time members, as our new vice-president and treasurer. We are happy, as always, to have Professor Coke Vood again as 2nd vice-president. There have been changes among our directors. We thank those who have stepped down, and welcome the new ones, as well as thank those who have agreed to serve another term.

ESMERALDA SCHOOL

The second schoolhouse used in the Esmeralda district was this simply constructed building on the Pozar Ranch. It was later replaced by a more substantial building which was used for a number of years until the district lapsed.

April Meeting

Some 59 members and guests attended the traditional April Italian-style dinner at Mountain Ranch this year. The bountiful meal was prepared by Mrs. Margaret Joses and neighbors.

Following the business meeting, the prize-winning essays were read by their authors. Because of popular demand, Miss Cathy Smith re-read her history of Milton. Mr. Phil Alberts, of Mountain Ranch, presented a paper on the Zwinge family, and also displayed his collection of photographs and clippings of the community.

It is proper, at the start of a new year, to urge the membership of the Society to enter into our activities as much as they are able to do so. Especially we invite our newer members to participate with us. There are many interesting projects that can and should be carried out, to document the local history of our county. We need members to organize such projects, do the research, and prepare the material for presentation. It is also a continuing aim of the Society to make our meetings as pleasant and as interesting as possible. And too, we hope to add special activities, from time to time, to our regular schedule. Your ideas and help on these will be much appreciated.

Once again we ask our members to invite any friends and acquaintances, interested in Calaveras history, to join. Our publications and activities are supported by our dues. Even if a member cannot actively participate otherwise, his dues and donations are most helpful towards the continuance of the Society's work.
